

Privacy Policy – Notes for Use

[last updated December 2019]

Under the Australian Privacy Act 1988 (Cth), personal information is information about a living person which can be used (by itself or together with other information) to reasonably identify that person. As we are involved in the Health Sector, we take additional precautions with privacy and are governed by the Australian Privacy Principles.

We respect your privacy and this privacy policy provides detailed information about the way we handle the personal information we receive and hold about you, who we share it with, how we keep it secure and what your rights are. We aim high. If you think we can improve our privacy handling, please let us know via the below contact details.

Privacy Policy

When we talk about ‘us’ or ‘our’, we mean our business/entity as identified in the above schedule 1.

When we talk about ‘you’, ‘user’ or ‘your’ in our terms and conditions, we mean you, the user of our services or visitor to our website.

‘Personal information’ is information that directly identifies you, such as your name and email address, or data that could be used, on its own or in combination with other data, to identify you. It has the meaning given to it in the Act. Sensitive information is personal information requiring special protection and includes information about your health. For the purposes of this policy, we are including sensitive information within personal information.

In general, we only use your personal information for the delivery of our services and to send you information about our services. We never sell or giveaway your personal information.

This privacy policy applies to both our website and our physical business.

1. Staying Anonymous

You can browse our online website anonymously (although cookies may identify your IP address). However, if you use, request or sign up for/purchase any of our services, you will need to identify yourself and at that point we will start collecting your personal information. If you do not give personal information to us, it will affect our ability to provide you with requested information or to deliver our products or services.

When you visit us in person, you may be able to stay anonymous or use a pseudonym in some circumstances. Please let us know when you make a booking (or when you arrive if you didn’t need a booking) and we can discuss your options. Depending on your circumstances, we may not be able to treat you if you do not provide your personal information.

2. My Health Record

Our practice is not registered with the government's My Health Record system.

3. Collecting personal information

At all times we try to only collect the minimum information we need to keep to provide our services (as requested by you) and to keep our records up to date.

The main way we collect personal information about you is when you give it to us, for example:

- when you contact us
- when you submit information to our website or in person (eg question sheet)
- when you talk with us in person
- when you ask for access to information we hold about you

4. Collecting information from third parties

We may also collect personal information that is given to us or available to us by a third party (for example, information that a referring specialist or general practitioner makes available to us). If someone calls on your behalf or provides us with information about you, we may collect the caller's name and contact details as well.

We may collect information from your employer or prospective employer (if relevant).

When you use our website, we may receive data from third parties such as analytics providers and advertising networks like Google and Facebook.

We may access information from My Health Record about you, but will only add what is relevant from that information to our records if it is important to enable us to provide better services to you.

This information forms part of the personal information described in this policy.

We will not intentionally collect personal information that is unintentionally disclosed.

5. What do we collect

To enable us to safely deliver our health services to you, it is necessary for us to collect and store basic and health information about you. It is important that we keep your records up to date and we have processes in place to help with this. For example, we may ask you if your details have changed each time you use our service.

We will collect (as appropriate to your circumstances) the following types of information:

- Your name, address, telephone, email
- Your date of birth
- Your Medicare card details as well as any related card numbers (Health Care Card, Veterans, Private Health fund etc)
- Information relevant to your health (current and historical) including medications
- Family medical history
- Your ethnic background (if relevant to your care)
- Your work history and/or current position
- Medical reports, referral letters, test results etc

- Any other information you provide or we receive from third parties

We keep your records in our system while you are still an active client of ours. After that, we may keep your archived records for up to 25 years, or as long as is required under relevant health regulations.

When we collect personal information about you, we will take steps to appropriately protect the information we receive. For example, our paper copy forms are stored in a locked filing system and our local electronic stored data is password protected.

6. How do we use your personal information and who do we share it with?

We collect and use your personal information to provide our services to you, including your health care.

Additionally, we use or share your information as follows:

- We use it for administrative and billing purposes.
- We will share your information with your carer or representative if you have authorised us to do so or they have provided us with your authority (for example under a Power of Attorney for health decisions).
- If you are under the age of 18, we will share your information with your legal guardian.
- We will add your health information to My Health Record with your consent. If we register with my health record it in the future.
- We will share your health information with authorised health practitioners within our business.
- We will share your health information when we are required to do so by law. For example, if we receive a valid court subpoena to disclose information.
- If we refer you to a third party for additional therapy, we will share your information with the third party with your consent.
- We will use your information for recalls or follow up visits.
- If we are seeing you for a work-related matter, we will share your personal information with your employer (or prospective employer), their authorised representative and their insurer.
- We will also disclose your health information if there is an emergency which we feel warrants disclosing your health or other information. For example, if you were suddenly unwell at our premises and we call the paramedics, we will tell the paramedics all health information we hold about you as well as your name, date of birth etc.

We will also share your personal information (eg. contact details) for business purposes including:

- Third party suppliers we engage to provide services which involve processing data on our behalf, for example IT and system administration services, website developers. In this case, we will require them to use that information only for the purpose of providing the services we have requested, and in compliance with the provisions of this privacy policy (or equivalent standards).
- Payment third parties if there is a dispute over a payment. For example, if our third-party payment provider contacts us regarding a dispute over a payment, we will provide them with requested information and billing details on our system etc to allow the payment dispute to be resolved.
- If you have received Medicare or health insurance rebates and we receive a request for information from that provider, we will share information with them to validate your claim.
- Professional advisers including accountants, lawyers, bankers, auditors and insurers for the compliant operation of our business.
- Government bodies that require us to report processing activities.
- Third parties where we are required to in accordance with the law. We reserve the right to fully co-operate with any law enforcement authorities or court order requiring or requesting us to disclose the identity or other usage details of any user of our online services, or in accordance with a properly executed court order, or as otherwise required to do so by law.

7. Direct Marketing

We may send you direct marketing about our products or services. You may always opt out of receiving this marketing by letting us know. For example, if we send you an email there will be an opt-out option at the bottom of the email. Opting out of marketing will have your details removed from our marketing list but will not change the way we use other personal information we hold about you. For example, you may still receive reminders about upcoming appointments.

8. Testimonials, Service ratings and public comment

Under national health regulations we are prohibited from publishing testimonials from our clients.

You may provide us with a star rating on our website or Facebook page, but cannot include any written explanation of why you gave us that star rating. You may talk about our services on websites or social media platforms that are not under our control.

Be aware that if you provide any public rating or comment about your use of our services, you will be making your status as our client part of public record.

9. Social media platforms and messaging systems

We may have a social media presence. Be aware that if you connect with us on social media, you will be making your status as our client, or someone related to a client, part of public record.

We may use your personal information on social media to let you know about our services or upcoming offers or events. We may confirm an appointment time with you through a messenger service.

We will not discuss or collect your health information via social media or messaging services.

10. How we use Cookies and other identifiers

We use a range of tools provided by third parties including search engine browsers and our web hosting company, to collect or view website traffic information. These sites have their own privacy policies. We also use cookies and session tools to improve your experience when accessing our websites and tracking cookies or remarketing pixels for analytical and advertising purposes.

Most web browsers automatically accept cookies, but you can usually modify your browser setting to decline cookies if you prefer. Some website features may not function properly without cookies.

The kind of information that can be collected includes:

- device specific information such as mobile network information
- server logs including your IP address, the times you use our services and system activity
- location information including IP address, GPS, and Wi-Fi access points
- local storage availability

We use the information to help to track your use of our online services to improve your user experience and the quality of our services.

To find out how to opt out of tailored advertising please check the options available here - <http://www.networkadvertising.org/choices/>.

11. Third Party Links

Our website may contain links to other websites who will have their own privacy policies. Once you leave our website, we are no longer responsible for your personal information and you should ensure you are familiar with the privacy policies of third party sites you visit.

12. Security and overseas recipients

We use safe practices and appropriate password protection for our systems and aim to ensure our third-party providers use similar care with your personal data. No security measures are 100% safe however and your data is stored with us at your own risk. We take reasonable steps to protect all personal information within our direct control from misuse, interference, loss, unauthorised access, unlawful or accidental destruction, modification or disclosure. To prevent unauthorised access or disclosure we use respected hosting services, firewall and other electronic security procedures and managerial procedures to safeguard and secure the information we collect from you.

We have procedures in place to deal with any suspected personal data breach and will notify you and any applicable regulator of a breach if we are legally required to.

We rely on third party providers to store the information you have provided to us securely and your data will cross international borders. Not all countries have the same level of privacy protection as Australia and you acknowledge and agree to our transferring of your personal data across international borders in this way. We will do our best to ensure your data is protected to a similar standard as set out in this policy by using third party providers with similar privacy protections.

All hard copy files are stored in Australia.

13. Accessing and correcting your personal information – Your legal rights

You have the right to know what information we hold about you and to ensure the information is accurate and up to date.

If you wish to exercise any of the rights, please contact us using our contact details in schedule 1.

You will not have to pay a fee to access your personal data. However, we may charge a reasonable fee if your request is clearly unfounded, repetitive or excessive. We may also refuse to comply with your request in these circumstances.

We may need to request specific information from you to help us confirm your identity and ensure your right to access your personal data (or to exercise any of your other rights). This is a security measure to ensure that personal data is not disclosed to any person who has no right to receive it. We may also contact you to ask you for further information in relation to your request to speed up our response. For record keeping purposes, we will record and store all information exchanged during an exercise of your rights under this clause.

We try to respond to all legitimate requests within 30 days. Occasionally it may take us longer if your request is particularly complex or you have made a number of requests. In this case, we will notify you.

14. Problems?

If you have any concerns about our use of your personal information, please let us know what the problem is in writing to the email address shown in the schedule at the top of this policy. We will do our best to help and will respond to your concerns within 30 days.

If, after lodging a complaint with us, you are not happy with how we managed your concerns, you can contact the Australian Privacy Commission, available at <http://www.oaic.gov.au>.

15. Updates

We regularly review and may update our privacy policy from time to time. The updated provisions will apply from the date they are posted on our website, so we recommend that you re-visit this privacy policy when you use our online services.

This privacy policy was last updated on 13th December 2019.

End.
